AS ONE.

[BY MRS. WYMAN, A SISTER OF BRET HARTE.]

So much of life do we have and hold—
Clouds and sunshine, pleasure and pain—
Which shall avail when the tale is told?
Will it be loss or will it be gain?

What of the storms that blow high and low,
Sweeping a dash over sea and shore,
Down the sweet paths where the roses grow,
Scattering leaves that shall bloom no more?

What of the hopes that the storms of life
Battle, baffle, and bring to earth?
After the struggle, the care and strife,
Shall it avail when we know their worth?

Ever and ever the world rolls on—
Hours, days, and the years fly fast;
And joy and pain, as the night and morn,
Shall be even as one at the last.
—Overland for July.

A Legend of the Rhine.

The beautiful river Rhine, in some of its windings, is not unlike that portion of our Hudson which flows through the Highlands. But it differs vastly from the latter, in that the grand old hills and immense rocks lying on either side are covered with ruins of what were once massive towers, castles and strongholds. These frowning battlements perched upon jagged rocks and steep mountain passes, were the homes of the warlike knights and barons of olden time, whose lives seemed spent in warring against each other. To all these ancient ruins throughout Germany, as well as on the Rhine, are attached some story or romance woven from history and tradition. A charming German author has gathered into a little volume many of these legends. One of the most delightful of the legends is connected with Richard I., King of England, called Richard "Coeur-de-Lion" because of his indomitable courage and bravery.

Richard was born in Oxford, and in 1189, succeeded his father, Henry II. It is said that his haughty spirit and unbending will hastened the death of the old king. Partly from remorse for past misconduct, partly from martial taste, which early in life distinguished him, soon after his accession to the throne he leagued with Philip of France for a second crusade in Palestine against the famous Saladin, Emperor of Egypt and Syria. Saladin had wrested Jerusalem from the hands of the Christian Knight, Reginald de Chatillon, and slain many of his followers. News of this disaster reaching England, Richard determined to regain possession of the holy city. The key to Syria was the fortress St. Jean-D'Acre, which endured a siege of two years before yielding to the combined forces of England and France. However, before the lion hearted monarch had time to take personal possession of Jerusalem, news reached him of war at home. He concluded a truce with Saladin, and quickly embarked to quell the revolt in his own kingdom. On the coast of Italy he was shipwrecked. Nothing daunted by this new misfortune, he disguised himself as a pilgrim, hoping to pass through Germany unknown. By some means, however, he became known to Leopold, Duke of Austria, who, to gratify a personal prejudice, caused him to be arrested and secretly imprisoned. The fame of this great monarch had been spread far and near by pilgrims to the Holy Land; by the songs of troubadours, and the plaudits of those who has fought under him. His own knights worshipped him, and a number of them banded together, determined, if he were still living, to find his hiding-place and deliver him.

On a lovely summer morning a troop of horsemen were passing through the country in which lay a portion of the Hertz Mountains. Three noble-looking men rode forward, evidently the leaders of the troops which followed. The middle horseman was dressed as a minstrel, and on his face was an expression of deep pain and anxiety. Suddenly he stopped his horse, to catch the notes of a shepherd, singing in the far-off field. No sooner was the song finished than he dashed towards the astonished singer.

"My boy, sing that again! See, I have gold for you!"

"'Tis a song I love!" said the boy, as he took the gold and recommenced his music.

"Now, tell me, lad," said the minstrel, "who taught you that song."

"I dare not tell!" replied the boy, as he glanced with suspicion at the knight.

"Aye! But you must tell me! No harm shall come to you! See, here is more gold for you."

"I have heard it sung in the castle of Triefels, near which I often feed my sheep."

"Oh, God!" exclaimed the minstrel, bursting into tears as he knelt on the ground, "How wondrous are thy ways!"

His companions approached him with amazement, to hear him exclaim: "We have found him! On to Triefels!"

After the excitement of their supposed discovery had somewhat abated, they decided, first, to get a view of the fortress, and then mature their plans for getting within it. The shepherd boy, who was to guide them thither, told them no strangers were allowed to cross the drawbridge, and the keeper was imperious and unsociable. Soon the towers of Triefels glittered in the sun, and, after a careful survey of its surroundings, they moved away for further deliberation.

"My friends," said the knight, in my minstrel's dress I must try alone to gain admission to the castle. Meantime, this boy will find you lodgings in the hamlet below. If our noble king is imprisoned here, we must release him."

Thus saying, and with one servant to bear his shield and harp, he rode to the bridge and demanded food and shelter for himself and servant. After much parley, he was received; but very ungraciously. However, within these walls he found a beautiful woman, the keeper's niece, whose smile was like the warm sunlight on a winter's day.

After dinner the minstrel sang to the drowsy uncle and the charming niece. As the former, after a while, seemed to sleep soundly, the knight began:

"You seem to love music, fair lady! But surely you do not often hear it in this lonely castle."

"No! only myself and one poor prisoner sing."

"A prisoner!"

"Yes, and he must be of gentle birth! But I dare not say more, lest my uncle wake. He will be angry if I talk of him."

"Tell me one thing, dear maiden, can I hear the song of this one, who sings for freedom?"

"Yes, if you listen tonight; his melancholy brings the tears to my eyes often enough!"

Just now, the old keeper awoke, and, giving orders to lead the stranger to his apartment, he himself went out. When our knight entered his chamber, he went to the window, and vainly strove, through the deepening twilight, to find the tower in which he suppose his dear king to be. Soon, a melancholy voice was heard singing these words:

"The golden stars wander over hill and valley, messengers of my longings and my griefs. In this gloomy prison I pass my life, and can only confide my woes to Heaven."

"Oh! my king!" sobbed the knight, as a pale face appeared at a tower window. "How can I tell you how near your friends are?"

"The harp!" he cried suddenly, and, snatching it up, with trembling fingers he played a romance which he had once composed for the king.

No sooner had he finished a few bars than the voice in the towers caught up the air and finished it. "Blondel?" exclaimed the king. For answer, the minstrel again seized his harp and sang:

"Oh, Richard! oh, my king!
The world abandons thee,
And no one now is seeking
Thy deliverance but me.
I'll save thy precious person,
I will break thy cruel chain,
I pledge myself in song
Thy freedom to regain."

Blondel spent the night in laying plans for the deliverance of Richard. He resolved to gain admittance into the castle for his followers through his friendship for the lovely girl, who had already made an impression on his heart.

Within a day or two the newly elected emperor was to be crowned at Frankfort. On the evening of the coronation, he directed the landlord of the little inn near Triefels, to give to the garrison of the castle a banquet that with proper ceremony they might drink to the health of the new monarch. Meanwhile, one by one, his own trusty knights stole, through the twilight, to the woods behind the castle.

At a late hour of the evening the little side-gate of the fortress opened, as the young maiden cautiously stole out to meet Blondel.

Then, for the first time, he unfolded to her the real object of his meeting with her, entreating her to fly back to England with the king whom he was about to liberate, and himself, assuring her that every token of love and gratitude should be shown her if she would yield to his wish.

With a cry of astonishment and pain, she exclaimed, "Oh, traitor! oh, woe! my poor uncle!" As she turned to fly within the castle walls, the followers of Blondel—who, in the darkness had approached unperceived—flocked about her, and made their way to the castellan's room, where the tower keys were kept. The few defenders of the fortress who were not at the village feast were soon over powered. The old keeper was powerless to do ought; but he cried out as the liberated Richard stood before him: "Against this deed, contrary to the law of nations, I protest and swear that you shall not leave Germany in safety!" The poor maiden threw herself upon her knees, and accused herself as the cause of this terrible disaster.

Meanwhile, the report of the attack upon the castle had reached the inn, and the warriors came back in hot haste to find themselves barred outside the walls, with a threat that if they did not disperse the castellan should loose his head and the castle be destroyed.

Blondel and the king urged the maiden to return with them to England, but she could not forgive the man who had used her heart for an act of treason.

Blondel left her, but not till she had accepted a ring and chain of gold in token of his eternal remembrance of her love and service towards him.

We do not propose to follow the fortunes of Coeur-de-Lion after his escape from Triefels; but to tell our reader what tradition says of the minstrel Blondel and the unhappy maiden.

Many, many years after the events which we have described, and on another summer day, a gray-haired cavalier rode over the same mountain pass, where the king had been sought and found.

"Here," murmured he, "here have I felt in days gone by the highest bliss and the deepest woe of my life!" Slowly he rode on till he had reached the little inn.

As he looked into the face of the landlord he discovered the features of the young shepherd boy. With an almost tender interest the two (one of whom was Blondel) talked of the past.

In tears the now old minstrel learnt the sad fate of the castellan and his neice. He was killed by some hidden hand soon after the flight of Richard was discovered. The broken hearted maiden entered a convent near Baden, where henceforth her life and history were lost to the world.

None can visit this ancient ruin of Triefels without a melancholy interest as they recall the dreary prison-life of the great King Richard; the touching romance of the minstrel knight, Blondel, and the lovely, loving maiden over whose story centuries have now rolled.

Newport Daily News.

SATURDAY, JULY 19, 1873.

Our friends will confer a favor by sending us facts of any matter of local interest which may come to their knowledge.

Correspondence concerning matters of public interest will be inserted, but we do not hold ourselves responsible for opinions expressed in such communications. All manuscript must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer.

The summer routes of the News are now carried. The paper is delivered north as far as Bliss road, east as far as Gibbs avenue and south as far as Webster street. The publishers will be pleased to serve all within the above limits.

It has been evident for some years that there was a large and rapidly increasing party in the Anglican Church that desired the closest possible assimilation to the Church of Rome, excepting, generally, the name. Four hundred and eighty three clergymen of the church of England have petitioned the Upper House of Convocation that the confessional should be reestablished, and be appointed. The Evangelical party is making a vigorous protest against this action.

It is about time the papers ceased to circulate that ridiculous story about the girl who covered her mother's individual butter plates for buttons. The only thing that is supposed to be funny about this is the supposed exaggeration, but as it is actually within bounds it is not funny a bit. If any one will look at a string of button moulds hanging up in the doorway of W. C. Cozzens's store he will see that individual butters are undersized. Either stop telling the story, or else say breakfast plates.

When a story has got so old that its teeth are all loose we protest against its being togged out in a new coat by some sterile minded seeker after the quickly fading laurels of a phunny phellow, and sent forth as a joke that people are to laugh at. Eli Perkins, one of the most notoriously unoriginal wags in the country in a letter in Thursday's Graphic begins with the story of the black cherry colored cat: "the same old cat," as the clown says in Humpty Dumpty, that we have heard of for so many years, and which Barnum says was sold to his partner Greenway. And then he tells the scarcely younger joke about the Thomas (cat) orchestra. Really, Eli ought have more respect for old age than to tell these anecdotes.

Papers in the east and western rivals of Chicago are commenting on the appalling amount of the unpaid taxes in the Garden city. One of our exchanges announces that one hundred and fifteen thousand pieces of real estate, are advertised in that city to be sold by the sheriff for taxes. The whole matter is simple enough. This list includes all property in the city, and it will all be sold by the sheriff if the taxes are not paid. But the public is not to suppose that the owners of this property refuse or are unable to pay taxes. This is merely the form employed in that locality for notifying land owners when their taxes are due, and what they amount to. What is meant by "delinquent taxes" in Chicago is taxes just become due, not taxes that cannot be collected without process of law.

We heartily agree with the New York Nation when that excellent journal demands that the possession of a pistol by a murderer be prima facie evidence of deliberate intent to kill. The possession of burglars' tools or counterfeiters dies is presumptive evidence of the individuals guilt, and there is no reason why the possession of murderer's weapons should not be presumptive evidence against a prisoner, and prima facie in the case of a murderer of malice aforethought.

No one carries a pistol except those who expect at some time to be called on to commit a murder, one which in the eyes of themselves and their friends will of course be justifiable. If the public regarded murder as as serious a crime as burglary or counterfeiting active measures would be taken to prevent the carrying of deadly weapons.

AGRICULTURAL EDUCATION.

Whatever reason may be assigned for it, our system of agricultural education does not meet the expectations of its advocates, and by others it is considered a failure. In our opinion it is not only a failure but it will always remain such. We have less hope of agricultural colleges than we have of schools of journalism. The fact is that farming is not a science nor a theory that can be taught in a lecture room. There are things about farming that can be learned from books, but instead of being a large or fundamental part, this is only secondary and additional.

The agricultural colleges that have been established on the land grants from congress differ but little from our classical colleges, and still less from our scientific schools. The length of the course is the same, the studies are in the main similar, the difference being that Latin and Greek are omitted and their places supplied by more science, or modern languages.

But the instruction given in an agricultural college is about as ill adapted to make farmers, as is that given in a classical college, not because the information given is not useful, but because it does not lead young men in the desired direction. Chemistry is very useful to a farmer, but when a young man has acquired a good knowledge of the subject he prefers a laboratory to a farm. French, German, and astronomy are quite as apt to wean a boy from agriculture as are Latin, Greek, or mental philosophy.

We don't wish to be understood as saying that farmers are illiterate, which is not true; but it is a fact that when a man has gained a good education, something considerably beyond that given in our district schools he is not disposed to earn a livelihood at the hoe or plow, but feels that a profession or journalism or commerce is the sphere in which he will be the happiest and distinguish himself most. After a man has in college, whether it be called agricultural or classical, acquired social and literary tastes he is not apt to look with pleasure on the isolation and physical labor of the farmer. The tendency of all the higher courses of education, whatever may be the text books used, is toward some form of literary life, and it is useless to expect to make farmers out of young men who during a four years' college course have taken a look behind the curtain that separates the intellectual and physical worlds.

And yet it is not to be denied that agriculture is dependant on physical science as well as mechanical ingenuity for its highest achievements. Some knowledge of practical chemistry is now acknowledged by nearly all, except the oldest inhabitant, to be very essential to the farmer. Some knowledge of the experiments made by enterprising farmers, or on "model farms," is of great value to him. Agricultural news from different sections of the country should be sought by every farmer who takes interest in his employment, that he may avoid the mistakes of others and avail themselves of their discoveries.

Some means of educating young farmers, then, seems eminently desirable, and if the college system miscarries, to what measures shall we resort? In the first place, every system that gives more of theory than practice is a failure as to farming, and every system that takes farmers' sons away from home and exposes them to the temptation to professional and business life, is, if not a failure, at least very hazardous.

It seems to us that the money now spent on agricultural colleges would accomplish very much more if it were spent in giving prizes at fairs, not for fast horses, but for good horses, cattle, crops and farm management, in aiding agricultural newspapers, in conducting experiments on model farms. We believe this would give very much larger returns for the money than the system which has lately been inaugurated.

The Massachusetts agricultural college at Amherst, whence come the "Aggies," has just graduated thirteen young men, of whom three are going to be farmers, one a gardener and the rest will enter the professions, and business. In view of the great expense that this college has been to the state and nation, it is not unnatural that the Springfield Republican thinks there is but a pennyworth of bread to an intolerable deal of sack. The state college is a great success as a scientific school and a great failure as a training school for farmers.

NEWS ITEMS.

Unusual interest is indicated by certain persons relative to the next Gubernatorial election. This is not surprising, when we consider how much often depends upon Executive clemency. [Boston Post.

Fraulein Leigler, the German tragedienne, is trying to get leave of absence, in order to accept an engagement offered by Ullman for one hundred performances in the United States, at $1,000 each.

The Tycoon has a "capital" way of encouraging newspaper enterprises. He orders that all men of certain social and political circles shall subscribe to the new Japanese paper or be beheaded.

Of the thirteen graduates of the State Agricultural College, yesterday, only three will become farmers and one a gardener. We submit that this is burning over a pretty large area of out-buildings for a tiny morsel of roast pig. At the same time we have harbored in this retreat of the farmer's boys three young men who were to be lawyers and doctors, four who mean to be civil engineers, one who aspires to business and one to the professional oar. [Springfield Republican.

The sentiment in the New Orleans Times (Dem.) is undoubtedly entertained by a great majority of the Southern people today: "The 'Lost Cause' was the cause of slavery. There was no desire at the heart of secession to destroy the Union, but simply to preserve its vital institution, in the destruction of which they only saw gloom and misery and death. The storm has broken and raged, and is spent, and the elements are subsided into a calm. There is not a man in the South, who is a man, that would any more today have slavery restored than the north would."

"And just here it may not be improper to say, unequivocally, in order that the motives of the Post may be clearly understood, that under no circumstances could the editor of this paper, whose name has been recently mentioned, be induced to accept any nomination by the Convention, however honorable in itself or cordial and gratifying in its offer. The candidate may with good judgment be taken from among the younger members of the organization, of which it happily boasts many possessing distinguished ability, elevation of character and deserved popularity." The New York Commercial Advertiser gives us a journalistic axiom: "When a bustling, self-confident person comes on to a newspaper and tells all hands he's going to make things 'fly,' he doesn't usually stay at it long enough for the wings to grow."

No events of special importance are reported from Spain. Several ministers have resigned to facilitate the formation of a homogeneous cabinet. An unsuccessful attempt to cause an outbreak at Barcelona was made Tuesday.

The editor of the Starks Herald is in a bad fix. In view of the new postal law he revised his mailing list and cut off all the exchanges he didn't want. The next week the other papers having cut off the exchanges they didn't want, he was surprised to find his post office box empty.—[Kennebec Journal.

The Decentralization Committee of the National Assembly of France has hit upon a new idea by way of compelling men to marry, and intends recommending that the new electoral law shall give every married man two votes instead of one, and a section of the Right purpose moving an amendment which will confer an extra vote for every child born in lawful wedlock.

The Washington Chronicle doubts the truth of the report that either Senator Conkling or Senator Howe will be appointed to the Chief Justiceship, and says, "The leading lawyers of the country seem pretty generally to still adhere to the conviction that Justice Samuel F. Miller ought to be promoted to this high position. While attending the funeral of the late Chief Justice and repeatedly since Reverdy Johnson, who ranks among the leaders of the bar of the country, made no secret of his opinion that Justice Miller ought to be appointed to this vacancy."

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

—Hop and reception at the Ocean House this evening.

—Our fruit markets are well stocked with huckleberries.

—The Constellation, from Annapolis, is expected to arrive in a few days.

—The yacht "Bunsby," owned by Mr Cook of New York, is at anchor in the harbor.

—August Belmont, Jr., has been elected a member of the New York Yacht Club.

Fires in the parlors of the hotels were required yesterday on account of the sudden change in the weather.

—Mr. John Neilson is spending a portion of the season at William Smith's in Paradise Road, a pleasant locality.

Mr. J. H. Clegg is prepared to fill orders for bell hanging and lock smithing, at his place, 69 Spring street.

—The cisterns and wells have been replenished: at which the people rejoice, and none more so than our people.

—Rev. W. F. Bainbridge of Providence, will preach at the First Baptist church tomorrow, morning and afternoon.

—Mr. Thomas Aspinall, of this city, is at Ferry Vale, Windermere, England, with Mrs. Aspinall, and at last accounts was improved in health.

—Saratoga boasts that eighteen teams may stand abreast on Broadway. So they can on Thames street, but they would have to stand crossways.

—On the noon trip of the steamer River Belle yesterday there was considerable drunkenness and also upon the last trip of the boat from Rocky Point. Its effect was both annoying and disgusting to all on board. We presume the liquor must have been purchased in this city, as none is advertised to be sold at Rocky Point.

—An attempt at theft was made last evening at the restaurant of Carl Herlgen on Thames street. A waiter had laid down his watch for a moment and a chap who was standing by took advantage of the opportunity to appropriate it to his own use. He was immediately suspected and searched, when the article was found and recovered. It is a pity that the fellow was not handed over to the authorities.

YACHT RACE. Commodore Bennett has given four $500 prizes—two for schooners and two for sloops—to be sailed for on the last Tuesday in October. The course will be over the usual Newport course, viz:—from Brenton's Reef Lightship to and around a buoy at Block Island and return. It is expected that yachts belonging to other clubs besides the New York Yacht Club, will be invited to appear in the race to compete for the prizes.

LIFE SAVING APPARATUS. The revenue cutter "Grant," Captain Slicer, has just arrived from New York with a complete set of life saving apparatus just imported from England. It is intended for the Narragansett life saving station at the Pier, to which place Capt. Slicer will take it, and where he will instruct the officers in the use of it. It includes the sky rockets, ropes, etc. etc., used by the English government at all its stations, and is perfectly complete, and is equal to any in the world.

BURGLARY.—Last night the house of John G. Weaver, Jr., on Berkely avenue, and occupied by George Wheatland, Jr., was entered and a large quantity of jewelry, silver ware and other articles stolen therefrom. It is impossible to ascertain all the valuables taken but the police will be furnished a list and description today. Noises were heard about the house during the night but it was supposed that some of the inmates were stirring. The police are busy working up the case.

ARRIVALS AT OCEAN HOUSE, July 18. D. H. Brigham, wife and two daughters, Springfield, Mass.; E. B. Clark, Washington, D. C.; Frank M. Riter, Philadelphia; Joseph Watkins, G. F. Ackerman and wife, New York; Joseph W. Allen and wife, Miss Allen, Nashville, Tenn.; F. Johnson, G. H. Rouss, John T. Adams, Jr., Chas. E. Duigee, New York; J. Brooks Fenno, Carteret Fenno, Boston; G. G. Baynton, Miss A. Boynton and maid, Providence; J. S. Girard, W. T. Duff, New York; T. Alleyne Beck, A. W. Wilkinson, Boston; B. Bagley, F. Wainsworth, Watertown, N. Y.; L. A. Munhall, Indianapolis; C. M. Munhall, Cleveland; Henry A. Laughlin and daughter, Mrs. E. I. Lyon, Miss Lyon, New York.

FINE READING.—To all cultivated persons who appreciate fine dramatic ability, and to all persons who enjoy a good laugh, we are happy to announce that on Thursday night next, Mr. Alfred P. Burbank of Chicago will give a reading in the Opera House. Mr. Burbank's repertory comprizes a large variety of humorous and pathetic selections, and all are rendered with unusually fine taste, and delicate feeling.

This gentleman comes with most complimentary recommendations from Miss Charlotte Cushman, and also from the Rev. Messrs. Robert Collyer and Charles Edward Cheny, of Chicago, both eminent judges of elocutionary and dramatic ability, and he has always received the warmest commendations of the press wherever he has given a reading. From our own personal knowledge we say without hesitation that Mr. Burbank is one of the finest of elocutionists. He has given a private exhibition of his talents in this city, and his hearers found themselves under the reader's influence to an unexpected extent.

GONE.—The Indians who have been encamped on the beach for a few days have suddenly left town for parts unknown. An aged member of the tribe who came after the others had been here was not notified of the contemplated move and has been left out in the cold, much to his disappointment, as it was his desire, at least, to live and die with the others; but it is evident that the attachment was not reciprocal. We have not heard that any unpaid bills were left by the Bohemians.

BILLIARDS EXTRAORDINARY. M. Albert Garnier of New York, the champion of the world at French caroms, gave an exhibition last night, at Aquidneck Hall, playing one four ball game 600 points with Mr. Reynolds of Providence, and one 3 ball French game with Mr. Finck, also giving a most brilliant and interesting exhibition of difficult and fancy shots. The audience although not large did not lack appreciation, every difficult caroms and well executed shot by either player, meeting with enthusiastic applause. M. Garnier is a nervous, light-built young Frenchman, some 27 years of age, and as he goes tripping about the table making his calculations and shots with great rapidity he gives you an idea that he is thoroughly conversant with every point in the elegant game and although playing only for exhibition against players who only play to keep the game going, he seems thoroughly in earnest and makes not a single careless or slouchy shot. Especially was this noticeable in the 3 ball game when the last inning he made the rare run of 68 consecutive shots.

In his exhibition shots the balls seemed absolutely charmed, going anywhere at his command, either on or off the table, running around the rail, or dodging over a hat, or traversing the whole length of the table in serpentine path, or amongst many glass vessels without breaking them. Even one who never saw a game of billiards could not fail to admire such wonderful skill. Capt. Moore deserves much credit for having induced M. Garnier to play here. It is understood that he will play again about Aug. 1st., when he will undoubtedly be accompanied by Madame Garnier, who is scarcely less skilled in the use of ball and cue, than her lord and master. Undoubtedly a large audience of both ladies and gentlemen will greet them as they certainly deserve.

The 4 ball game was played in 11 innings, Garnier's average 54—6, Reynold's 18—1. The three ball game in 8 innings, Garnier's average 12—4. Finck's 2—2. The table used was one of H. W. Collender's new style, level table and, according to M. Garnier, was an excellent one.

New Music.

We have received the following new pieces of music from A. J. Ward, Thames street: "Does he ever think of me?" song and chorus, by Will. S. Hayes; "Julia, 'tis of thee I sing," "My every thought was of thee," and "Pretty Eveline Adair," all by the same. "The soul is dark," by Ida Walker; "Ten Little Rogues," by Ch. Kinkel; "The Reapers," by Florence Kinkel; "Farewell, darling, till we meet," words by Paul Parallel, music by A. H. Rosewig; "Little sweetheart, come listen to me," by Arthur W. French; "The Signal," galop, by D. Etty; "Beautiful Dreaming Eyes," words by John S. Cox, music by Dumont; "Africaine," by Kinkel; "Belsorio," by the same, and "Pearl of America, Caprice," by Florence Kinkel. Also, "Christmas Chimes," a book of carols.

A writer in the London Times tells how they trap tigers in India, and describes the trap in use in some parts of the country. Strong posts are fixed in the ground so as to form a circle of palisades ten or twelve feet in diameter. Another larger circle is formed in the same way outside the other, leaving a space of a foot and a half between the two. In the outer circle a small door is made of a width equal to the space between the circles. A goat or calf is tied to a post in the centre, and the door is opened, so that it stands across the space between the circles. The tiger comes and walks round the outer circle till he finds the entrance. He enters, and walks round the space till he meets the open door, which he pushes back into its place. The space is too narrow for him to turn round or exert his great strength, and he continues to walk round and round till morning, when he is easily killed, and the bait extricated unhurt.

The last number of the Danbury News has this little fling at the female of the period—or perhaps we should say at the female of all periods: "At the depot on Monday evening, an eager looking man jumped from the train and clasped a waiting woman to his arms. 'Heavens, my wife!' said he. 'Mercy! my ruffles!' said she. Which showed what both were thinking of."

STATE MISCELLANY.

Rev. C. W. Burnham has been appointed Superintendent of the Public Schools in Cumberland.

The Harwich Independent, says an immense mussel bed skirting the shores of East haven has lately been discovered. This mussel bed is expected to yield a very powerful fertilizer.

The charter of the Putnam and Stafford Springs Railroad has passed both houses and is now a law, and we believe at no very distant day there will be a through line of railroad from New Bedford, Fall River and Providence to Springfield and the West. Capitalists and railroad men would do well to look this way.

A meeting of the Pawtucket Council was held last Monday evening. Bills were allowed to the amount of $500 15. Abner J. Tompkins was appointed a public weigher. It was ordered that all obstructions be removed from Kossuth street, and the petition of Wm. P. Allen for a new fence on this street, at the town's expense, was not granted.

Mr. John F. Holt, Superintendent of the Woonsocket Rubber Company, was driving over Hamlet avenue bridge, in an open buggy, when his horse took fright at the running of a concrete stone roller and became unmanageable. It is supposed that he ran the carriage against one of the railroad stone piers, whereby Mr. Holt was thrown out and had a shoulder dislocated. He is quite comfortable today, with a prospect of being on duty again in a few days. The carriage was considerably broken up.

The dry term continues in Portsmouth, yet we have no doubt but that the forces of nature are working correctly, and that seed time and harvest will still continue. With us the hay harvest is about completed, and we see no reason for changing our opinion that the crop will be about two-thirds of the average. We see some farms where the cut of hay is equal to that of last year; particularly is this the case where fields have been underdrained and judiciously manured. There is great difference of opinion about the crop of early potatoes, some farmers saying that the crop is large and others that there is not half the usual yield. The fact probably is that fields that were planted very early have yielded well, while those which were planted later have produced a very small crop. We hear of a field of the last class of two acres that will not produce seventy bushels. Because of the drought the crop of late potatoes must be very small. Garden vegetables look much better than might be expected. Corn never looked better than it does now, at this time of year, except some fields that were very wet in the spring, in which the earth is dried very hard. Oats are fast ripening. The mown fields have the dry appearance which they usually have the last part of August. Many wells and streams are dry. [Providence Journal.

The programme for the entertainment of the visiting Odd Fellows from Lynn and Haverhill, to Providence on the 31st instant, includes a trip to Bristol Ferry and a clam dinner there on that day, with an evening banquet in the city. On the following day the visitors will be shown about the city, and at 6 p. m. there will be a parade of all the encampments in this vicinity.

The new contractor for stone work on the breakwater at Block Island is pressing forward his work. The excursion season is now at its height. Mr. Ball has just returned from Bangor, Me., where he has been purchasing lumber for his new hotel. The foundations are very strongly laid, and he has sunk two large cisterns, with a connecting pipe between them, near the house, the waters to be used for household purposes. The old "Thomas Rose" house, which stands near the new hotel, and is to be used for additional lodging rooms, servants' departments, etc. The new schooner yacht Nathan P. Dixon, leaving Block Island for this city, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, with the United States mail, returning on alternate days, has had remarkably good success thus far in accomplishing her trips with regularity. Capt. Card has commenced his regular semi-weekly trips from Westerly and Stonington; leaving the latter place on the arrival of the morning trains each way. His days for coming to the Island are Mondays and Thursdays.

The store of John E. Brown of Warren was robbed Tuesday night of a small amount. The store of Caleb Harding was attempted but without success.

About fifteen hundred bushels of scollop shells have been brought to Warren from East Greenwich and have been thrown overboard in Kickemuit river, north of the Tide Mill Bridge, for the purpose of a set of oysters upon the shells. A large number of grants have been given for oysters, and when a set takes place the small oyster are taken and placed in Warren and Barrington rivers.

At a regular meeting of James Wood Lodge, No. 20, I. O. O. F., held at Cranston, Wednesday night, Grand Master Gardner T. Swarts, assisted by Dist. Dept. Grand Master Ball, Grand Secretary John F. Driscol and other officers of the Grand Lodge, installed the new officers of the Lodge for the ensuing term. The following officers were elected and duly installed:

N. G.—Chas. Robt. Linke; V. G.—William Hill; R. S.—William E. Husband; Per. S.—Frank C. Browner Treasurer—Aaron S. Haven; R. S. to N. G.—John Henry Bongartz; L. S. to N. G.—James H. Kay; W.—T. C. Lawton; C.—James T. Carnell; I. G.—Horatio N. Peck; O. G.—Albert Potter; R. S. S. Henry F. Hobson; L. S. S. Robert Wilson; R. S. to V. G.—S. S. Atwell; L. S. to V. G.—J. W. Bowker, Jr; Chaplain—Rev. D. G. Anderson.

Snow, the health superintendent of Providence thinks the city ought to be more like snow in respect to cleanliness than it is.

The freshmen gold medal at the Farnsworth prize declamation on Monday last, at the Amherst Agricultural College, was won by Charles W. McConnell, of Lonsdale.

The Vital Drain.

It is necessary to the health of the body that its exhausted and refused particles should be carried off by the excretory organs, and it is equally necessary that the waste matter thus expelled should be replaced by new elements derived from digested and assimilated food. It is evident, therefore, that good digestion and perfect assimilation are essential to bodily vigor; and it is because Hostetter's Stomach Bitters powerfully assist those processes, that it is regarded by the intelligent classes, whose opinions are founded on observation, as the only absolute specific for dyspepsia and its attendant ills, at present known. When the system, either from constitutional causes, overwork, excess, anxiety, or actual disease, is in an unnaturally relaxed condition, something more than its exhausted particles passes through the pores. Vitality leaks through these ventages. Elements which should remain in the blood and enrich it are evolved, and that fluid becomes thin watery and incapable of renewing the solids of the body as fast as they decay. The consequences are emaciation, debility, nervousness, loss of spirits, and a general, or perhaps a rapid decline of all powers of life. It is in cases like this that the restorative properties of Hostetter's Bitters are most conspicuous. The first two or three doses sometimes produce a change in the feelings and aspect of the invalid that is perfectly astonishing, and by a persevering use of this superlative vegetable tonic and alterative, the vital drain is sure to be arrested, the strength reinstated, the flesh restored, the constitution reinforced, and the brain relieved of the cloud that obscured it.

Cardinal Woolsey was a man of unbounded stomach. All such persons should use Williams' Jamaica Ginger.

Only Such Perfumes as those prepared by Messrs. Colgate & Co., will call attention to the meritorious labor that is given to this branch of manufacture. Science, originality of thought, and much study are requisite to bring about a first-class article, all of which are more than evident in the above named and delicious preparations.

The Most Unhappy Person in the world is the Dyspeptic. Everything looks dark and gloomy; he feels "out of sorts" with himself and everybody else, life is a burden to him. This can all be changed by taking Peruvian Syrup (a protoxide of Iron). Cases of 27 years' standing have been cured by it.

For Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO PHOSPHORATED ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by CASWELL, HAZARD & Co., New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other intermittent fevers. jy9-4w

FROM WASHINGTON.

HEALING SOAPS.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue decides that soaps of all descriptions, including fancy, scented, honey, cream, transparent and shaving soaps exempt from taxation when not placed in the category of medicinal preparations, nor held out as a remedy or specific for disease, &c., but on the contrary, when such soaps are held out and recommended to the public as medicinal preparations, cosmetics, &c., and special merit is claimed for them, and patronage is solicited on account of their healing, improving and beautifying qualities and properties, and when these claims are clear and circulars are accompanying each packet or box or pot, or either enclosure, they become liable to stamp tax under schedule "C," and it will be the duty of revenue officers to see that they are properly stamped.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 18.—Neither the State nor Navy Departments have as yet received any official intelligence concerning the escape of the blockade runner Virginius from Aspinwall. It is no secret, however, in official circles, that the American Consul largely exceeded his proper authority, and that the convoy to sea of the blockader by one of our men of war, was a violation of our neutrality which we cannot justify upon a presentation of the facts on the part of the Spanish government. We cannot refuse to disavow the action of our Consul.

BALLOONING.

Col. Mallory, of the Signal Bureau, has addressed a letter to the Washington correspondent of the New York Graphic, informing him that the request of the journal for the co-operation of the Bureau in the approaching scientific balloon expedition across the Atlantic Ocean, would be complied with to the extent of furnishing carefully drawn instructions and proper instruments for meteorological observations, and that if any qualified observer of the Signal Corps should volunteer his services, he would be permitted to accompany the expeditions, reporting solely to the bureau. This action of the bureau is understood to be based on the fact that observations by balloon have been for a considerable time past one of intended agencies of the Signal Corps, and that the present joint undertaking of the Graphic Company and Prof. Wise has been a sufficient warranty of experience and scientific approach, to justify the bureau in at least the qualified participation herein indicated.

New York.

WALWORTH SECOND.

An infuriated son attempted to shoot his father yesterday, a la Walworth, at the corner of Broadway and John streets, but was frustrated by the crowd, his pistol being knocked from his hand.

BISMARCK.

In a sensational account of an alleged interview with Bismarck at Berlin, the latter is represented as saying that he was not going to withdraw from public life and refuse to Varzin because he was growing unpopular, but because he was growing weary of the fight of the empire against the church.

NEW YORK, July 18.—The following telegram has been received at the office of the Anglo American Telegraph Co., in this city: The telegraph fleet arrived at Sydney, Cape Breaton, last night. The cable from Placentia was buoyed. Thirty-five miles from the former place, the Hibernia having payed out all she had on board. As the shore ends are laid, the Edinburgh will lay the other cable from Sydney to Placentia.

It has now been definitely settled to arm and equip the police officers of this city and form them into a regular organized military body.

Miscellaneous.

BOSTON, Mass., July 18.—The notorious Spencer Pettis, who was convicted some time since of being engaged in swindling Mathew Bolles & Son of some $6,000 worth of railroad bonds, and who, since conviction has been in jail to await the result of exceptions sent to the Supreme Court, was brought before Justice Morton of that court today upon a writ of habeas corpus, to hear a petition for reduction of bail. Previous to his trial Pettis was held to bail in $5,000, but after conviction the amount was increased to $20,000, in default of securing which he was committed. The petition was denied and Pettis was remanded.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 18.—The workshop of the Hampden county jail, in this city, was damaged by fire this evening. The leather and other stock of L. C. Smith, the contractor for the labor of the prisoners in the manufacture of slippers, was badly injured by water. No insurance.

CHRISTIANA, July 18.—The coronation of Oscar and Sophia as King and Queen of Norway took place today at Drontheim, the ancient capital of the Norwegian kings. There was a brilliant procession to the cathedral, in which Prince Arthur represented the Queen of England, and Prince Waldemar the King of Denmark. The ceremony of the coronation was performed by the Bishop of Drontheim.

LONDON, July 18.—In the House of Commons, today, Mr. Rylands gave notice that when the civil service estimates came up for consideration, he should move to throw out the appropriation for building a house for the British legation at Washington.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., July 18.—A large number of the people of Mount Vernon came to this city last night, flying from the cholera. The epidemic is stated to be on the increase there yesterday, and was reported worse this morning. All business was suspended and a panic exists. There was one fatal case in the city yesterday.

SEASONINGS.

Whitestone makes bold to call itself the American Brighton.

Newport fashionables are agitated at the prospect of a "high life" wedding.

There's a deal of irregularity regarding the distribution of the mails at Long Branch.

Motto for the colored waiters at Long Branch: "They also serve who only stand and wait."

The beach at Swampscott is sufficiently hard and level to enable the young Bostonians to play croquet on it.

Cottages at New London have the appearance of having been washed, ironed, and starched, and the occupants of having drank what starch remained after the operation.

They have entered upon what promises to be a really successful season at Cape May, socially and financially. They are colonizing people on the roof of the Stockton House already.

Something should be done to rid Coney Island of card-sharpers. They are a great drawback to the place and a terror to timid people. This season they are unusually numerous and uncommonly bold.

George Washington Smith is head waiter at one of the Atlantic City Hotels. He is a very high-toned cuss and can barrel five similar of Fred Douglass, I'd whether he ever told a lie or destroyed cherry trees is not known.

Narragansett is quickly pursuing the even tenor of its ways. The band plays, but people are slow to take the hint. With the exception of the Tower Hill House and one or two others, the hotels are miserable.

Abominations at seaside hotels: Matches that won't light, soap that won't wash, towels that correspond in size to napkins, flies in soup, sand in water-pitcher, and looking-glasses "fearfully and wonderfully made."

SARATOGA.—The races commenced at Saratoga on the 24th of July and already there is expected to be a rush to the springs in anticipation of that event. Congress Hall, the leading watering place hotel in America, is filling up and nothing that can be done for the entertainment of the guests is left undone by Mr. Hathorn, the proprietor. Bernetcher's orchestra furnishes most delightful music. There are hops every evening, and frequent grand and masquerade balls in the superb ball room. Everything must go off merrily with Prof. Loomis as master of the ceremonies.

There was a midnight serenade last week in honor of Com. Vanderbilt's arrival by a late train, and on Sunday evening last. The guests gathered in the parlor and sang psalm tunes. Morning Germans, children's receptions and parlor concerts are on the tapis. The ball room being in a separate building (reached by a little bridge) enables guests who do not care for gayety to be quietly free from any excitement if they remain in the hotel proper.

Visitors to Saratoga from Newport, can leave here at 5 a. m., and arrive at that resort in time for supper. Pullman cars run through. If you can't go to Saratoga, the next best thing is to drink bottled Hathorn before breakfast at home.

Isaac Walton's imitators are numerous at Fire Island. Fishing is the only recreation thought of or indulged in there bouts, and this year the sport is unusually fine. Fire Island is well provided with Babcock's Fire Extinguishers.

Among ultra-fashionable demoiselles at the sea side there is little if any inclination to indulge in surf-bathing, and simply because they consider that it is not "fashionable" to do so.

Cape May has two daily papers, the Star and the Wave. Both are spicy little affairs, full of prattle and tattle of interest to everybody, but it is feared the Wave will extinguish the Star.

A building is to be erected at Katama, and will be commenced next week, for the accommodation of clambakes. It will be 200 feet in length by 30 feet in width, and it is intended to make this new watering place the "Rocky Point" of Massachusetts. The clams taken from the beach there are said to be of a superior quality and the quantity is inexhaustible. The bakes are to be under the management of the renowned Shumacke, who is perfectly elated with the advantages that the place affords for such an enterprise. A large stable is to be put up immediately for the accommodation of visitors in carriages. As soon as these arrangements are completed an excursion train will be put on, leaving Fitchburg at 6 o'clock in the morning and arriving back at 9 in the evening, allowing excursionists three hours at Katama. Other arrangements are in progress and will soon be completed that will cause this place to become at once most famous, by drawing there at least fifteen thousand visitors the present season. Katama will lead off in making "Massachusetts clambakes" the grand par excellence.

CAPE MAY.

(Correspondent of the N. Y. Times)

To the New-Yorker desirous of spying out the land and seeing what manner of life his neighbor leads, the railroad advertisements will prove a stumbling block, a delusion, a trap, a snare, and a regular deception. The railway is not in the least to be blamed, but the fact is that there is no thought of accommodating New York in the matter, the great object being to make the transit agreeable to Philadelphians. Hence some unpleasant detentions here and there, which I now find might have been avoided if I had fallen in with the Cape May trains running from Camden. As it was, I went to Philadelphia, and was somewhat bothered in making my way back to Camden, more especially as it chose to storm violently, and carrying a satchel, and a big hook, and an umbrella through a pouring rain, is not diverting to any one.

At Camden I had the good fortune to meet the special train but found every seat taken, and to appeal to the tender mercies of a Pullman palace car agent, who graciously found me a camp-stool, on which I sat miserably in a car full of tittering beauties, who somewhat enjoyed the length of my countenance as the man planted me in the middle. There I was, wet, and bedraggled, an ugly oasis amid all that beauty. Everybody was going to Cape May, and though everybody was attired in handsome traveling dresses there was an evident unconstrainedness about the toilettes which said as plain as words that Cape May was not a dressy place. We rattled along in the cars for hours, as it seemed to me on that tiny campstool, traversing a country very much resembling Sandy Hook, being all sand with a luxurious outgrowth of trees with underwood.

Here and there I saw the sweet wild rose, which New-Yorkers call the Scotch rose, though it blossoms in every English hedgerow, and is only to be seen in a few southern shires of Scotland. There were many evergreen trees, and I think among them some cedars, but will not be sure. Occasionally we dashed past something that looked like a station in this wilderness which continues for miles upon miles, but for the most part the land seemed silent and deserted, like the depths of a Western forest. As we neared Cape May the trees disappeared, and great swaths of a marshy land succeeded, on which grew a coarse, rank grass, that, however, was very beautiful in color, and was soon made more so by the setting sun, which gave to everything the glory of a golden atmosphere. The train dashed into the little depot, and every one seizing his or her impedimenta jumped out of the cars and started for the gate. I never saw such a scene in America before!

The entire place outside, surrounding the stages of the different hotels, was occupied by ladies and gentlemen who had come to see the train arrive, and hoped to welcome some friends. Recognitions being plentiful, I saw before me an army of charming female heads, the mouths wide open, and the fair owners accounting at the tops of their most sweet voices to attract the attention of some bosom friend just arrived. When the pangs of friendship had been thus appeased, we who were strangers and had no one to welcome us were able to hear the cries of the stagemen, and could choose our hotels. There were more stages for the Stockton than for any other, so I chose that, and, after a short drive through a pleasant city of cottages and hotel villas, was landed at that hotel, which is situated within fifty yards of the surging sea. Those who like to lie awake and listen to the booming of the surf have the amplest facilities here, though I will confess, for my part, that I very much prefer going to sleep. And this is strange, too, for those who, like me, desire to sleep, are lulled by the same sounds as perfectly as ever is babe by the lullaby of its young mother.

The Stockton Hotel is not only the largest but it is certainly the best here. In shape it is like an enormous letter T, the cross part being 200 feet in length, and the body 900 feet. Its general air is something like the West End Hotel at Long Branch, being of a similar color and construction, though with finish more elaborate. Dodworth's band was playing on the promenade in front as our party thumbled out of the stages: a class of vehicle many clumsy than any other ever conceived by the fertile brain of man. There was an army of brush-boys in blue uniforms awaiting our approach. One seized my satchel, another my umbrella, a third my book, and a fourth began to operate vigorously on the calves of my legs. I was utterly unconscious, apparently, of their existence, and walked in retaining my baggage, whereupon all the porters who had me so to speak, in fragments, dropped me politely, and bestowed their civilities elsewhere. "Ha, ha," said I to myself, "this is a good hotel. Now, at some places I know of, I have been unable to hold onto my possessions without an unseemly struggle. This portends peaceful days."

At the awful official desk there were four clerks, all busily engaged and all perfectly polite. Wonder of wonders! I had not been asked to pay for the stage, which accommodation the hotel throws in gratis. And now a polite clerk asked me for my valise check, which was handed over to an official, and my baggage was in a few minutes stowed in the hall. An excellent room was assigned me by another polite clerk, and I was taken to it by a colored porter who was so laboriously polite as to be ridiculous. The colored race are very imitative, and it is laughable to hear them in this house copying the civil speeches of the clerks, hoping that you have had a pleasant ride on the cars; that you were not incommoded by the dust; that you will have a pleasant time here, and echoing their regrets that all their best rooms have been pre-engaged. They take their fees, too, with a suave air which is delicious, as if they felt that it pleased you to be generous, and they were falling in with your wishes by accepting a douceur. This is a great deal better, after all, than Long Branch, where the man who accompanies you to your room, plunks down your baggage with a resolute air, and looks you fiercely in the face as if mentally saying, "Give me fifty cents, or I'll carry your baggage down stairs again."

Literary Notices.

We have before us for review No. 8 of "Half hour recreations in Popular Science," consisting of two lectures. The first on "Yeast," by Thos. H. Huxley, F. R. S. The second on the "Relations between Matter and Force," by Prof. John H. Tice.

It is a hopeful sign, and a good outlook for the general advance of public education, when such men as Huxley, Tyndall and Tice find means to express in language so explicit and plain that he who runs may read, facts and theories that have been long jealously guarded by narrow minded book worms and so-called scientists. From so humble a topic as Yeast, Huxley develops a most interesting lecture upon Protoplasm (the life substance in plants) and the Germ theory. The lecture is too good to excerpt. Its full perusal will amply repay any reader. The lecture of Prof. Tice is somewhat heavier, and more complete in style and composition. As usually happens, the greater the man and the greater his familiarity with his subject the plainer his speech. Perhaps there could be no more marked instance of this than in these two lectures. Huxley, ever easy, plain and comprehensible. Tice, as constantly heavy, verbose and delighting in abstruse mathematics and Latin quotations. Still the address of Prof. Tice will find favor with lovers of ingenious theories. (For sale by C. E. Hammett, Jr., Newport.)

THE AMERICAN NATURALIST, a popular illustrated magazine of Natural History.

May—A fine specimen of the art typographical, containing many fine plates, and much that is curious and of absorbing interest to the amateur scientist, and the general reader as well.

The June number contains among others an interesting paper speaking of several American birds new to science. (For sale by C. E. Hammett, Newport.

AUCTION SALES.

Sheriff's Sale.

Newport, sc. STATE OF RHODE ISLAND, &c.

SHERIFF'S OFFICE, Newport, June 21, 1873.

BY VIRTUE and in pursuance of an Execution issued out of the Clerk's Office of the Supreme Court of the State within and for the County of Newport, on the first day of April, A. D., 1873, upon a judgment of said Court rendered on the 25th day of March, A. D., 1873, in favor of Jane S. Pearce of Little Compton, in the county of Newport and State aforesaid and against Elijah Pearce of the same Little Compton, for the sum of $1,222.50 debt and costs, whereof execution remains to be due, I did, on the 10th day of April, A. D., 1873, at fifty five minutes past nine o'clock, A. M., levy the said execution upon all the right, title and interest, which Elijah Pearce the aforesaid defendant, had, at the time of said levy, in and to the following described premises, to wit: A certain parcel of land with all the buildings and improvements thereon situated in said town of Little Compton in said county and bounded Northerly on lands of Charles C. Briggs; Easterly, partly on lands of James E. Devol; Westerly, partly on lands of Samuel G. Pearce; Southerly and partly on lands of Samuel G. Pearce; Southerly and land of James Pearce and land of heirs of Stephen Simmons and partly on land of John Devol; Easterly on the long highway so called and lands of said John Devol or however otherwise the same may be bounded, subject to the power to be reserved, I did levy a said on equity against the said Elijah Pearce brought by John E. Pearce, Lydia F. W. Pearce, Emma L. Pearce and Edward S. Pearce, which said suit is now pending in the Supreme Court of said State within and for the County of Newport, and

NOTICE is hereby given that I will sell the said attached state at a public auction to be held on the said attached and described premises on Saturday the 12th day of July, A. D., 1873, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, for the satisfaction of said execution, debt, interest, costs, my own fees and all contingent expenses if sufficient, unless the same shall be sooner satisfied.

GEO. MANCHESTER, Sheriff.

ADJOURNMENT.

Newport, ss. Newport, July 12, 1873.

The above sale is hereby adjourned to Monday the twenty-first day of July, A. D. 1873, at 12 o'clock, m., on the aforesaid premises, in consequence of an order from the Supreme Court restraining said sale, until further notice.

Newport Daily News.

SATURDAY, JULY 19, 1873.

American Painting and Sculpture.

[From the London Daily News, July 1.]

Mr. Powers was in many ways a fit illustration of the versatile and vigorous genius of his country. He began his life in a humble sphere and had tried more than one humble calling before he discovered that he had any true artistic capacity, or at least before he obtained any opportunity of developing it. He was more than thirty-three years of age when he completed his "Eve," which first gave him artistic rank. His "California," his "America," his statues and busts of American statesmen and patriots are little known in Europe.

His was a career of steady and patient labor, which, having won at its mid-point its most remarkable success, fairly kept its repute to the last. It can hardly be denied that during the last twenty years or thereabouts, Americans have made great progress in sculpture as well as in painting. The names of such artists as Miss Harriett Hosmer, the sculptor of the superb captive "Zenobia," and Mr. Story, the poet and artist, whose wonderful dreamy "Cleopatra" won admiration, are earnest enough of what people would once have called a national mission in art. Many American sculptors might be mentioned whose names have a celebrity in their own country, such as Mr. Rogers, Mr. John Hart and Mr. Launt Thompson, for example, but who are as yet little known in England.

America is somewhat like our own land in one fatality connected with art. She is not very happy in her out-of-door statues and monuments. The average George Washingtons, Edward Everetts and Abraham Lincolns are about at a level with our own Georges, and Williams, and Dukes of Wellington. In painting, the progress made by Americans is more distinctly realized among Europeans. The works of Mr. Church have long been popular everywhere in Europe, and Mr. Bierstadt's vast heights and depth and startling contrasts have been, perhaps, only too popular. At every recent exhibition of our Royal Academy, the present year forming no exception, the paintings of Americans have held a place among the most successful. Rome and Florence have their little colonies of artists and students, men and women who have come from New York and New England and even from the States of the West.

What Americans have not yet succeeded in doing, and perhaps have not often attempted to do, is the familiarizing of Europe with the peculiarities of the scenery and life of the New World. Even in the United States themselves, there is but too little artistic illustration of America, despite what men like Mr. Kensett and Mr. Gifford, the brothers Hart (Scotchmen by birth), and Mr. Eastman Johnson and others have done. But in Europe we seem to know only of Niagara and the Colorado scenes painted by Mr. Bierstadt, and perhaps the Yosemite Valley. We have too seldom been allowed to judge of the wondrous autumnal tints along the hills of the Hudson; of the scenery of Lake Champlain and Lake George; of the woody gorges among the glowing Alleghanies; and the almost indescribable beauty of the Indian summer.

It may be that the peculiarities of atmosphere and a foliage strike the European eye at first as too unfamiliar to become welcome. Thus there has, perhaps, been little encouragement to American artists to paint for Europe the scenery of their own rivers and woods. Even in the present exhibition of the academy there is a painting which has probably suffered in public favor by the realism of its effort to represent the color and tone, strange and seemingly unnatural to English Eyes, of a sea-beach in one of the Atlantic States. Whatever the reason, it is evident that when American sculptors and poets obtain a popularity among us it is not by their treatment of American subjects.

The statues by Miss Hosmer, by Mr. Story and by the late Mr. Powers, which are most admired—we might almost say which alone are admired—by Europeans, have nothing American about them but the hand of the sculptor, we confess that, without meaning to be pedantic on the subject, we are inclined to doubt whether any nation can reach a very high point in art without relying upon the genius, if we may call it so, of its own scenery and its own peculiar life for inspiration. Rome and Florence are probably the only available schools for American students at the present day; but we can hardly believe in Rome and Florence being the nurseries of great American art. The sculptor who died was perhaps an evidence in the support of this idea. Had he not been enabled to study in Florence he might never have produced the "Eve" and the "Greek Slave." But the "Eve" and the "Greek Slave" added little or nothing to the achievements of art, and will hardly even win for the sculptor an abiding name.

It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.*

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low state of the system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures, to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN JURUBEBA BLOOD PURIFIER

Is the most powerful cleanser, strengthener and renewer of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.

It is specially adapted to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Boils, Blotches, Pustules, Scrofula, &c., &c.

When weary and languid from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a Tonic to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

In the heat of Summer, frequently the Liver and Spleen do not properly perform their functions; the Uterus and Urinary organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.

DR. WELLS'

EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA

Is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these complaints; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED organs.

It should be freely taken, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical authority the best PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known to the whole range of medicinal plants.

Diamond Spectacles.

THESE SPECTACLES are manufactured from "MINUTE CRYSTAL PEBBLES" melted together, and are called Diamond on account of their hardness and brilliancy. It is well known that spectacles cut from Brazilian or Scotch pebbles are very injurious to the eye, because of their polarizing qualities. Having been tested with the polariscope, the diamond lenses have been found to admit fifteen per cent. less heated rays than any other pebble. They are ground with great scientific accuracy, are free from chromatic aberrations and produce a brightness and distinctness of vision not before attained in spectacles.

Manufactured by the Spencer Optical Manufacturing Company, New York. For sale by responsible agents in every city in the Union. H. A. HEATH & CO., Jewelers and Opticians, are Sole Agents for Newport, R. I., from whom they can only be obtained. No peddlers employed. Do not buy any unless you see the trade mark.
